Council Acts to Borrow $120,000 for Relief

REQUEST FOR FUNDS UNDER 2 PLANS OK'D

Adopts 2 Resolutions Asking County to Certify Amount of Money Available.

ONLY 5 MEMBERS PRESENT

Proposal Calls for Issuance of Notes Against Delinquent Taxes for Matching.

Acting to provide funds to finance the relief burden for the balance of this year, city council last night laid the groundwork for the borrowing of $120,000 when it authorized city officials to make application for the funds under two separate plans.

With only five members present, council adopted two resolutions asking the county commissioners to certify to the city the amount of funds available under the dual borrowing plan.

Asks Note Limit.
The first requested the commissioners to certify the total amount of delinquent taxes due the city at the last semi-annual tax collection while the other called for certification of the maximum amount of notes that the city may issue in anticipation of state taxes through 1941.

City Solicitor Marion D. Ward said it is hoped that through the dual borrowing plan the city can issue notes in the amount of $120,000 for relief purposes.

He explained that the one plan calls for the issuance of notes against 70 per cent of the anticipated collection of delinquent taxes which in turn would be used to match funds borrowed from the state through the issuance of notes against 90 per cent of anticipated state taxes.

Seeks $60,000 on Back Taxes.
He pointed out that the city anticipated borrowing at least $60,000 to $70,000 against the anticipated collection of delinquent taxes which would allow it to borrow the maximum amount available under the state plan. This calls for the issuance of notes against 90 per cent of beer, malt, wort, admissions, and public utility excise taxes through 1941.

Councilmen present at last night's session which lasted only 19 minutes were George Berg, George Kyle, C. N. Shultz, L. D. Hunter and Harry Emmons. Councilmen Fred Miller, Arthur Croak, James E. Crum and Russell D. Porch were absent.

Seeks to Enjoin Closing of Shelby Street for Fair

Ernest Brunk, Shelby radio store and filling station proprietor, today had filed an injunction suit in common pleas court seeking to enjoin Shelby city council from closing the city's Main street for the Shelby street fair Sept. 7 to 10.

Hearing on the petition was set for 9 a. m. Friday before Judge C. H. Hunter in common pleas court.

The petition names the city of Shelby and Mayor D. Bruce Young as defendants.

Asserting that closing of the street would cause him to lose business and that legislation providing for roping off the street for the fair is invalid, Brunk asks that city officials be enjoined from placing the ordinance in effect.

Brunk further charges that concessions and rides which would be erected in the city's Main street will obstruct traffic and be a "nuisance" to business men.

Shelby council enacted an emergency measure about three weeks ago providing for closing of Main street from Church street to Second street, a distance of almost a mile.

Atty. George W. Biddle, Mansfield, is Brunk's counsel.

Sikora confronted Solomon with a pistol and fired five shots. Ahern said Mrs. Sikora, 22, told him that "Rudolph was a perfect husband. He brought his pay check home every week and never drank. But I didn't love him. I just liked him. I loved Eddie (Solomon)."

Zasu as Rhumba Dancer, She's Damn Fine, Mayor Says

PONCE, Puerto Rico.—(INS)—Don Jose Tornos Diego, the mayor of Ponce who recently had his appendix removed in Washington, reflected today on whether a triumphant reception by his people compensated for a stormy one at home.

The folks of Ponce turned out to give him a lavish welcome when he returned, but things were different when his wife heard he had danced the rhumba while in Washington with Zasu Pitts, the movie star.

"My wife, she make plenty hell," he said. "She say I'm crazee to dance the rhumba with bandage on the belly."

"But that Zasu is one fine, nice girl, by damn. She can rhumba, too."

Eyston Drives His Racer at 347 Miles Per Hour.

BONNEVILLE SALT FLATS, Utah.—(INS)—Capt. George E. T. Eyston, land speed king, traveled 347.13 miles per hour here today, but failed to break the official record because the "electric eye" failed to function at the start of the second run.

In making the speed run, Captain Eyston traveled faster than any other human being on land, although the record will not be considered official because of the failure of the timing device.

On the north run, Eyston pushed his speed far above the 300-mile-per-hour he made last Nov. 19, and on the return trip through the measured mile his speedometer read approximately 350 miles-per-hour.

Government Lines Collapse As Franco's Troops Push On.

HENDAYE, FRANCE.—(AT THE SPANISH FRONTIER).—(AP)—Government lines slowly gave ground today under repeated hammer blows by insurgent shock troops on the Ebro river front in eastern Spain and along the Tagus river in the west.

District Attorney F. A. Silveira quoted Harwell as saying he and his two young stepsons knelt in prayer yesterday afternoon in their one-room cabin while his 26-year-old wife read from the Bible.

She read Matthew 18: 9: "And if thy hand or thy foot causeth thee to stumble, cut it off, and cast it from thee; it is good for thee to enter into life maimed or halt, rather than having two hands or two feet to be cast into the eternal fire."

The cotton picker said his wife came back into the cabin "apparently without pain." At Mercy hospital doctors said the woman was in good condition and would survive.

HAWKS KILLED BY VIOLATING RULE

Famed Speed Flier Took Off in Cross-Wind, Airmen Say; Companion Also Dead.

(By United Press)
BUFFALO, N. Y.—Lieut. Commander Frank Hawks, world famous speed flier and one of the greatest pilots this country ever produced, lost his life because he violated an elementary rule of flying, it was said today.

Flying a small cabin-type biplane, designed to answer the need for an inexpensive plane so safe anyone could fly it, Hawks took off in a cross wind. The plane failed to gain altitude. Its wheels tangled in electric light wiring, dumping it to the ground where it burst into flames.

Hawks' passenger, J. Hazard Campbell, a wealthy Buffalo sportsman, was thrown clear. Hawks was dragged out of the flaming wreckage by farmers. He died three hours later in Buffalo General hospital, and two hours later Campbell died. Both had suffered fatal internal injuries.

The accident occurred in yesterday's twilight at East Aurora, near here. Hawks had landed in a polo field to pick up Campbell who was a prospective purchaser of the plane, an "aircar" manufactured by the Gwinn Aircar company. (Continued on Page 8, Col. 2)

Transport Badly Damaged In New Mexico Mishap.

ALBUQUERQUE, N. M.—(AP)—Eleven persons escaped serious injury early today in a forced landing which badly damaged a Transcontinental Western Air transport airplane four miles north of Albuquerque airport.

Mr. and Mrs. Q. J. Smith of Bel Air, Cal., and their two sons, aged nine and three, were taken to Albuquerque hospital for observation, but attendants said they appeared to be suffering only minor cuts and bruises.

Four other passengers, the pilot, Harold Hess, the co-pilot and the stewardess went to a hotel.

NEW YORK.—(AP)—George Weinberg, 36, testified today that in October, 1933, Dutch Schultz ordered him to help James J. Hines elect William Copeland Dodge as district attorney of Manhattan. Dodge, a Tammany man, has been accused by District Attorney Thomas E. Dewey of having been "intimidated, influenced or bribed" by Hines.

NEW YORK.—Searching cross-examination by the defense awaits George Weinberg, policy racketeer who twice "put the finger" on James J. Hines, as he returns to the witness stand today in the Tammany district leader's trial on lottery charges.

"The worst case of perjury I ever heard," was Defense Counsel Lloyd Paul Stryker's description of Weinberg's testimony yesterday. Weinberg accused Hines of accepting $500,000 in a week to "fix" judges and "break" police officers for the protection of the slain Dutch Schultz's $20,000,000 policy empire—of which 70 per cent of the take was profit. Arrests and raids once cost the combine $100,000 in a brief period, Weinberg said.

"Greek to Me."
"It's Greek to me," remarked Hines himself, who had kept his eyes alert and his head cocked for every date, place, name and occurrence mentioned by the laconic gangster.

After a full day on the stand, Weinberg was scheduled to continue his direct testimony before being submitted to a lashing from Stryker, who made Weinberg admit in a previous appearance that he once lied in court to save $24,000 in an income tax action.

Dapper Gunmen Hold Up Filling Station, Take $71.

Police today sought two dapper gunmen who walked into the Fair Price filling station on Park avenue east at the subway early today and robbed the attendant of $71. It was the second holdup laid to the pair in the last week.

Police were told the bandits entered by the rear door at 4:30 a. m. and ordered Evan Waltz, alone in the station, to "turn over the cash."

Waltz said the pair looted the cash register and then ordered him into a lavatory to "stay there for five minutes." After tearing the telephone lines from the wall, they left through the rear entrance. Waltz said he did not see an automobile.

He described the men as being about 30 years old. One wore glasses and was bareheaded and both were dressed neatly.

Bates Proposes Two-Way Radio for Police Cruisers

Officers Could 'Talk Back' to Superiors If Plan's Approved; Equipment Cost Set at $700.

Mansfield police officers in the near future may be "talking back" to their superiors—that is if Police Chief Meade K. Bates' plan for two-way radio communication goes "across" with city council.

Outlined by the chief today, the installation of two-way radio in the department's four cruisers supplementing the present set-up would cost $700. Bates said he will go before council in the "very near future" seeking the funds.

A two-way short wave transmitter could be installed on each cruiser at a cost of approximately $175, the chief says.

Sought for Efficiency.
He explained that the request was to be made in order to build up a more efficient police department.

"The horse and buggy days are over even in the police department," he added. "With the present day criminal using fast cars and radio himself, we have got to be one jump ahead of them. And we can do just that with two-way communication."

He pointed out that it would also serve as a check as to the exact position of the various cruisers and whether they were in service. Any officer could direct or relay messages to other cars through the central station which would effect greater speed in case a police net was laid to trap criminals in an emergency, Bates said.

"Although police calls have been speeded up by the addition of the radio, it is still a question at times as to whether the signal had been received by the car to which it had been sent," the chief said. "The two-way radio would allow for a check on all cars."

SEEN AS WINNER IN SCHOOL FIGHT

Robinson Expected to Retain Post When Board Meets to Hear Charges Saturday.

Boyd Robinson, county superintendent of schools, apparently had won his fight to keep his post as head of the county's rural schools, although hearing of ouster charges against him will not be held until Saturday morning.

County board members, who will decide the case against the superintendent, were silent on the probable outcome of the hearing, but indications were that at least three members of the board will support Robinson, enough to retain him as head of the schools.

The naming of Leland Clever, Weller township, to the county board to replace Floyd Hunt, Mansfield, provided the balance in the superintendent's favor. Clever is the only member of the Union rural district board who refused to bring malfeasance charges against Robinson.

Date for the trial was not set.

Construction of Fire Station Delayed as City Asks New Bids

A delay of at least two weeks was seen today in the construction of a new No. 2 fire station when the city board of control called for new bids after ruling out 17 bids yesterday when the lowest proposal failed to meet specifications.

Service-Safety Director Earl A. Nist announced that new bids would be accepted until noon Sept. 9 on the construction of the building.

Nist said that all bids were ruled out by the board when it was found that a proposal submitted by J. W. Ness, the lowest bidder, was accompanied by a check for only $100. Specifications called for a check in the amount of five per cent of the bid to accompany the proposal.

Ness was the only contractor to submit a price on the entire construction work. His bid, including general construction, plumbing, heating and electrical wiring, was $7,835, or $360 less than if the contracts had been let separately to the lowest bidders.

The new engine house will be of brick construction with a 40-foot frontage and 50 feet deep, and will be erected on the site of the present frame structure on North Main street.

PRISON GUARDS FACE CHARGES, CORONER SAYS

Blames Two Officers in Four Deaths From Scalds During Hunger Strike of 600.

'ROASTED ALIVE,' CLAIM

Cell Radiators Were Turned on After Convicts Were Packed in, Officer Says.

(By United Press)

PHILADELPHIA.—Coroner Charles H. Hersch said today he would arrest two Philadelphia county prison guards whom he charged were responsible for the deaths of four hunger striking convicts in the prison's cells.

Hersch said the four men, reputed leaders of a hunger strike against "monotonous menus," were "roasted alive" in a steam scalding which endangered the lives of 25 other striking prisoners in the confinement cells.

Others Face Charges.
"If prison Superintendent William E. Mills or any other prison officials knew about these two guards getting orders to 'turn the steam on,' I am going to arrest them too," Hersch said.

Hersch said beatings which the men apparently suffered still were unexplained.

"We must determine if the beatings were administered before the steam was turned on," the coroner said, announcing that he would go to the prison at Holmesburg later today.

The naked bodies of the four convicts were turned over to relatives so disfigured that the relatives said they were "unrecognizable." Hersch, after inspecting the prison, described it as "worse than the Black Hole of Calcutta."

Over 600 of the prison's 1,400 inmates began a hunger strike last Wednesday. The strike ended Sunday night with six men alleged to be ring-leaders in two disciplinary cells. These cells, so small that they were not large enough for one man, Hersch said, were equipped with a water tap, a bowl, and a toilet. Hersch said that after three men had been locked into each cell, the keys to the water taps were removed and someone turned steam into the radiators, disproportionately large for the cells, full force.

Staff Shifts In Toilets.
The convicts withstood the increasing heat for a while, Hersch said, by stuffing their shirts into the toilets which, equipped with automatic flushing devices, poured (Continued on Page 2, Col. 2)

HOROSCOPE

For Thursday, August 25.

WITH VERY powerful aspects between major planets, this day should be of prime importance in weaving life patterns toward goals of influence and significance. Contacts with those in place and power should be utilized to bring such objectives to a head. But the friendship of the mighty may be accompanied by friction or opposition of elders or conservative superiors. Drastic change, big opportunities and complete reorientation of plans may result.

If This Is Your Birthday.

Those who birthday it is face a year of prime importance in shaping their future destinies and their plan of usefulness and happiness, as well as prestige and popularity. Powerful friends in high places may further such ambitions, but some opposition and friction may accrue. But new opening, lucrative agreements and changed environs are assured.

A child born on this day may be unusually endowed for the attainment of place and power in life, probably far beyond its station at birth. Its fine faculties, sound objectives and its splendid personal attributes may attract the support of influential persons. It also may have noteworthy social bearing and prestige.

Are You Poor Cook?

Bad Cooking Causes Family Rifts

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX
Famous Authority on Problems of Love and Marriage.

I always have the deepest sympathy for, but can never understand, the psychology of a woman who doesn't know how to cook. Perhaps I'm wronging a great number of my sex, but to me cooking seems almost intuitive.

Wonder piles on wonder when I get a letter from one of these women (or often from her husband) telling me that her husband eats at the corner drug store because cooking is beyond the knowledge of the wife.

For goodness sake, why don't these women learn, I've asked myself a thousand times as I shoved a tear-blotted letter back into its envelope after urging the writer to lose no time going to a cooking school.

Apparently the inability of many American women to prepare an appetizing and well-balanced meal must have reached tremendous proportions, to have brought about, as it did in the closing days of the congress, a discussion in the senate committee on appropriations. The new Work Relief bill recommended that provision also be made available for "domestic service projects."

This item is certainly a novelty in the government's spending program, but, apparently in the interests of the collective American stomach, it is well worth while.

Mr. Edgar A. Brown, president of the United Government Employees, Inc., told the committee that there are 400,000 positions in American homes awaiting competent cooks and other domestic workers. Despite the fact that a great number of women are willing and eager to fill such places, they lack the necessary knowledge, and are on relief.

Domestic workers, especially cooks, must have skill, know food values and be able to turn out dishes that look and taste well. But the demand for these workers is never filled. Mr. Brown proposes federal projects or schools with courses in cooking, dietetics, marketing and other household arts. At the end of six months,

FOR SEVERAL seconds after Lillian had told Mother Graham that both she and I, at the insistent request of the queen of Transylvania, had called her "Olga," the elder woman made no reply, apparently too shocked by the news to reply. Then with a withering look at both of us, she arose, gathering her skirts around her.

"In that case," she said, "I have nothing further to say, except to tell you that I will not be a party to anything so undignified. She was so weak when I was in her room just now that I said very little to her, and there was no occasion for me to use her title. And when I heard Mrs. Bickett use the name, I was almost out of the room. But I shall be most careful in the future to be meticulous in my use of her title, and of the Princess Olina's also, despite her request to me a little while ago. I shall show them that one person in this benighted household has a sense of the fitness of things. The next thing, I suppose, I shall hear Katie calling the queen 'Olga.' But I warn you if she does, I shall box her ears. I still have the strength for it."

THEATER

"Alexander" Held Over.

As might have been expected "Alexander's Ragtime Band" will be held over for the remainder of the week at the Ohio. There is a popular cast and the appeal of the Irving Berlin hit tunes of the past 30 years, is no small factor in the success of the pictures. Alice Faye's voice has never been heard to better advantage than in this film in which she is associated with Tyrone Power and Don Ameche. An interesting sidelight on the picture is one that will be noticed by no one except those who are old enough to have remembered the development of popular band music in America. Although the picture is built around the Berlin music, it is obviously the life story of Paul Whiteman. Berlin was never a leader of a great band, and it was Whiteman who started playing with a small "home-made" orchestra in a dinky little cafe in San Francisco; Whiteman who moved

My mother-in-law's lips shaped themselves into a shocked and grieved "Oh!" but she uttered no sound, and Lillian swept on while I compressed my own lips tightly to keep from sounding an expression of dismay.

"You have generously given them sanctuary here. Marg's father has saved their lives. If he can continue to save them, if the men conspiring against them can be captured, and the plot scotched, they still will have to face the task of rebuilding their lives in a country with ideas utterly alien to theirs. Cannot you understand that they wish to face their new situation without any reminder of their past? Cannot you see that seeing the beautiful relationships of this family, and the friendship of Katherine, Madge and me, that the queen longs with every fiber of her being to be made a part of it? She and her daughter are so alone. I for one could not bear to compel and wound her by refusing the first request she has made."

Correspondent Meets Girl.

Don Ameche has been so busy making pictures the past year that two of his films appear simultaneously this week. The Madison is offering "Gateway" in which Ameche, as a foreign newspaper correspondent, chases pretty Arleen Whelan all over an ocean steamer and plays romantic tag with her through Ellis Island—gateway to America. She comes to America to meet and marry her fiancé, but when he doesn't measure up, she's left at the island without a passport, until the knight errant of the Fourth Estate solves the problem with a marriage proposal. But there are complications between the proposal and the acceptance.

Romantic Bandit.

Something of the same idea, but turned in an entirely different direction is found in "Passport Husband" in which a pretty woman uses a man as a means of outwitting deportation authorities. Stuart Erwin's presence in the film makes it largely comedy, however. Gangsters and racketeers and their women make up the roster of characters, with two innocent persons hopelessly involved. These are Erwin and Pauline Moore. Jean Woodbury, Harold Huber and Douglas Fowley are importantly cast. The Majestic also shows the romantic and historical "Robin Hood of El Dorado," which pictures some of the events in the life of Murrieta, bandit of the early southwest, with Warner Baxter and Ann Loring in the leads.

Washington Intrigue.

The Katherine Dayton-George S. Kaufman society comedy, "First Lady," whose half-concealed picture of Washington's drawingroom politics and intrigue held base New Yorkers for two seasons, provides Kay Francis with one of her most important vehicles in several years. In it she is seen as the daughter of a former president of the United States who pulls the behind-the-scenes ropes and wires to make her husband a candidate for the same office. Her defeats and triumphs are accompanied by smart dialogue.

BEWARE THE BIG SUIT

WHENEVER the dummy has an almost solid side suit, there is great danger that the declarer may be able to discard all of his losers on it as soon as he can get the lead. Under such circumstances it is well to demonstrate why "quick tricks" got their name. Try to rake in as many high card tricks as possible for your side before he gets a chance to operate one trumps and the big suit.

Dealer: South. Both sides vulnerable.

After a 1-Spade bid by South, North went to 2-Clubs. South 2-Spades, North 3-Spades and South 4-Spades.

The hearts K and Q were cashed by West and, even though his partner's discards of the 5 and 7 indicated that he held one more, West decided he could do no harm by forcing South to ruff a third round of the suit.

After ruffing, South drew three rounds of trumps and on the set up clubs was able to discard two diamonds, so that his losses were limited to two hearts and one diamond.

Dealer: South. East-West vulnerable.

With the diamonds A and K cashed and a diamond ruffed by East, how can declarer make game? East's return was the heart 2.

SEEKS OPINION FROM SOLICITOR ON LOTTERY BAN

Council Committee Asks Ruling on Legality of Measure Urged by Gas Dealers.

A request from the Gasoline Retailers' association of Richland county seeking an amendment to the city's gambling ordinance today had been tossed into the lap of City Solicitor Marion D. Ward. The petition, bearing the signatures of 45 filling station operators, was referred to Ward by council last night after Councilman George C. Kyle, chairman of a special committee which had the request under advisement, told members that he didn't believe the city was in a position to take the initiative on the request "at this time."

Points To State Law.
"We have a state law governing lotteries," Kyle said. "This request appears very much like class legislation in that it is quite broad in its scope and I would like to have it referred to the city solicitor for an opinion on the legality of the legislation."

The petition, representing 95 per cent of the operators in Mansfield, asked council to amend the city's gambling ordinance to prohibit lotteries within the municipality and make it unlawful for any person to participate in a gift or award by chance or to give or receive such an award in connection with any wholesale or retail business including theaters and clubs.

The petition was referred to a special committee comprised of Kyle, Arthur Croak and Harry Emmons at the last regular meeting Aug. 2.

Members of the association said the action was aimed at gasoline station "gift awards" which had been promoted by some Mansfield operators before being abandoned two months ago.

The same committee which also has under advisement a request from East Fourth street property owners for the elimination of smoke nuisance asked for further time for investigation of the matter.

Kyle said they wanted to give the problem "more study."

MEN LOVE GIRLS WITH PEP

If you are peppy and full of fun, men will love you to dance and parties. BUT if you are cross, listless and tired, men won't be interested. Men don't like "quiet" girls. When they go to parties they want girls along who are full of pep. So in case you need a good general system tonic, remember for 3 generations one woman has told another how to go "ruling thru" with Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. It helps build up more physical resistance and thus aids in giving you more pep and lessens distress from female functional disorders. You'll find Pinkham's Compound WELL WORTH TRYING!

Famed Speed Flier Took Off in Cross-Wind, Airmen Say; Companion Also Dead.

pany, of Buffalo, of which Hawks was vice president and sales manager.

There was a touch of irony to Hawks' death. He had flown the fastest and therefore the most dangerous planes ever made without a serious accident, and in April, 1937, he had retired from speed flying.

The plane in which he died was designed primarily for safety and equipped with every known safety device.

He was born in Marshalltown, Ia., March 28, 1897. He was an instructor in aviation during the World war and left a captain. In February, 1929, he flew non-stop from Los Angeles to New York in 18 hours, 21 minutes, 59 seconds. Five months later he made the dash the other way in 19 hours and 10 minutes and the next day he flew back to New York in 17 hours and 36 minutes.

He cracked up a plane at Worcester, Mass., in April, 1932, fracturing his jaw and lacerating his head, face, and hands.

He is survived by his wife, the former Edith Bowie of Weatherford, Tex., whom he married in 1927, and a step-son.

charges against Robinson and is recognized as a supporter of the county schools head.

Clever was named to the county board two weeks ago by Probate Judge C. J. Anderson after Hunt resigned under pressure. Hunt, who was one of the leaders in the movement to remove Robinson on malfeasance charges, quit the board after charges of non-residence in the county district had been filed against him in probate court. He moved to Mansfield from Lucas last March.

Four of the five members of the Union rural board filed charges against Robinson several weeks ago, accusing him of usurping the authority of their board in applying for a PWA grant for a new school building.

The Union board later filed its application for $82,100 in PWA funds for a proposed $138,000 grade and high school building in Franklin township. The board has asked the state commission for permission to hold a special election Sept. 20 on a $75,900

HELP STOMACH DIGEST FOOD

Without Laxatives—and You'll Eat Everything from Soup to Nuts
The stomach should digest two pounds of food daily. When you eat heavy, greasy, coarse or rich foods or when you are nervous, hurried or tired, your stomach pours out too much acid. Your food doesn't digest and you have gas, heartburn, nausea, pain or sour stomach. You feel sour, sick and upset all over. Doctors say never take a laxative for stomach pain. It is dangerous and foolish. It takes those little black tablets called Bile Beans for indigestion to make the press stomach fluids harmless, rid the system in 10 minutes and put you back on your feet. Bile Beans is so quick it is amazing and one 5c package proves it. Ask for Bile Beans for indigestion.

Parade Precedes Visit Saturday of Air Race Caravan

A parade from Central park to Municipal airport Saturday morning will precede the arrival of the Cleveland Air Races caravan of 17 planes which is due to land soon after 10 a. m., officers of the Mansfield Junior Association of Commerce said today.

At the airport, Mayor Claude M. Hunter will give a brief talk of welcome to the visiting air race representatives and will receive a letter of greeting from Mayor Harold H. Burton of Cleveland.

The parade will include city and county officials and industrial leaders in Mansfield who will go to the airport to serve as a reception committee for the visiting pilots and goodwill messengers.

Long issue for the district's share of the cost.

The reception will be in charge of the Junior Association of Commerce, headed by Atty. Francis R. O'Brien.

The air caravan, designed to promote interest in the National Air Races in Cleveland early next month, is being sponsored by the Cleveland Junior Association of Commerce.

The planes will be here for about 30 minutes on their swing through Ohio.

PUT MEN BACK TO WORK AND HELP YOURSELF

All over America business is "picking up"—because of SALES. Sales at retail reduce stocks in stores, merchants reorder from wholesalers and manufacturers; as their stocks are depleted factory employment increases . . . thus, SALES MEAN JOBS!

"Sales Mean Jobs" campaigns are active in nearly 1,000 cities now. As a result, thousands of dozens of shoes, hosiery, men's suits, women's dresses, automobiles have already been sold and in selling have exerted a pull on wholesale stocks that has set factory wheels turning.

All over America DOLLARS GO FARTHER NOW—because Fall will bring some price increases. Newspapers in New York and other metropolitan centers are carrying the advertising of leaders in retailing lines that already exhibits tendencies toward price increases.

So, for two reasons, Mansfield should buy—to make business better for all America, including ourselves—and to get the most for our money, for a blanket bought now at $9.00 will represent a saving, in all probability, in October.

Let's help ourselves, here in Mansfield, by buying what we need NOW during these closing days of August. Bargains are offered in all the stores, every day, are advertised in The News-Journal every day.

Ahead of us are several important sales—A "Back to School Sale" now operative and continuing until Labor Day; an Auto Sale, Saturday; a Men's Sale, later; an "End of Month" Sale at all the stores . . . Buy as you can from day to day, watching announcements by stores and business places.

Check Cleveland Rag Dealers In 'Best' Torso Clue

JUNKMAN HELD WHILE POLICE TRACE QUILT

Picture of Tattered Blanket in Which Woman Was Wrapped Identified by Barber.

BULLETIN
CLEVELAND—(UP)—Police today held eight men and a woman at a rag and paper company here where a 56-year-old junk dealer believes he left a quilt in which was wrapped the 15th torso murder victim of "the mad butcher of Kingsbury run."

(By Associated Press)
CLEVELAND—Detectives visited cluttered premises of rag dealers today in an effort to trace a faded and shabby patchwork quilt in which Cleveland's "torso slayer" shrouded portions of his 11th victim.

Inspector Charles O. Nevel said the quilt was "the only real clue" in the three-year-old mystery since segments of another of the dozen "headless dead" were found in 1936 in a burlap bag which had held chicken feathers. The latter clue proved fruitless.

In custody for questioning was a 56-year-old junk collector identified by Charles Damyn, a barber, as the scavenger to whom he gave the quilt and some clothing last month.

'Sold' to Junkman.
Damyn saw a published picture of the tattered quilt and later identified it at police headquarters as part of the bundle he "sold" to a "swarthy" collector for 67 cents. Damyn said the junkman failed to return the next day and pay him, as he had promised.

The rag man, picked up on Damyn's description, said he received a similar quilt from the barber's downtown apartment building but did not identify it positively.

"There are a lot of quilts like that," he said, but Damyn had told police "the torn spots on the patchwork are exactly the same."

The barber identified the junkman in a police lineup, after which the latter said he recalled obtaining a quilt from Damyn.

Nevel said the collector was not considered a suspect.

Wrapped in the quilt were pieces of the body of a woman, the fifth of her sex who met death at the phantom killer's hands. The butchered bodies of victims 11 and 12, the latter a man, were found a week ago under stones in a lake front dump half a mile from the city's public square.

'Prayer Healing' Fails, Preacher, Mother Arrested

LOS ANGELES—(UP)—An Apostolic preacher and the mother of a nine-year-old boy were accused of manslaughter today by a grand jury which charged that the boy died because his mother's religious beliefs had kept her from permitting an appendectomy.

Mrs. Lillian Volstad, 30, and Rev. Wilbur Alvis, 33, knelt at the bedside of Francis Warren Volstad, 9, and prayed for his recovery when they should have asked for medical treatment, the grand jury said.

Police secured a court order Aug. 6 and removed the child to a hospital two days before he died. Physicians said he was screaming from the pain of a ruptured appendix when he was brought to the hospital.

Mrs. Volstad told the grand jury her prayers and those of Rev. Alvis had brought improvement in the child's condition, and that he became worse after he was taken to the hospital.

GALION WOMAN DIES OF STROKE

Mrs. Anna Engelhorn, 66, Had Lived in City for 53 Years.

GALION—Mrs. Anna Engelhorn, 66, of 371 Payne avenue, who had been ill two years, died at her home today. She was born in Germany, Jan. 1, 1872, and came to Galion at the age of 13.

Surviving are her husband, John; three daughters, Mrs. Frieda Skahill of Toledo, Mrs. Loren Leedy of Mansfield and Mrs. Walter Kumm of Galion; two sons, John and Carl of Galion; a brother, Gottlieb Kuebler of Galion, nine grandchildren and two great-grandchildren. She was a member of the First Reformed church.

Services will be held at the Volk funeral home at 2 p. m. Friday with Rev. P. E. Auer of the Peace Lutheran church officiating. Burial will be in Fairview cemetery.

Up and Down THE STREET

A handsome brochure of 16 pages, with pictures of Mansfield and portraits of Mansfield business men and manufacturing officials is being circulated over the country by Liberty magazine. The pictures were taken a year ago by Robert W. Leavitt, cameraman for Liberty and were later published in Liberty as well as several advertising papers. The frontpiece is a striking picture of the corner of Park avenue west and Main street, taken from Central park, with the statue of the Civil war veteran sharply outlined against the white background of the Richland Trust building. In the descriptive pages of the brochure is a thumbnail sketch of the city and "all things which make Mansfield an example of worthwhile America."

Harvey Bailey is beginning to think that Hank Greenberg and Jimmy Foss aren't so much after all. Didn't he hit a home run himself the other night? He certainly did! Playing with the Hermit kittenball team, Harvey slammed one far over the outfield for an easy homer. At the time, no one was more surprised than Harvey, but he thinks he'll concentrate on distance hitting now, and try to make home runs a habit.

City council's meeting last night was unusual for two reasons. It lasted only 19 minutes, and only five of the nine members were present. Councilman Charles N. Shultz, veteran of council, says it was the first time within his recollection that at least two-thirds of the membership was not present. Lacking that number, no action could be taken on ordinances, which made the brevity of the session possible.

All of the Mansfield High school football games that printer Charles Nichols has missed in the last 10 or 12 years could be counted on one hand, so it is not surprising that he plans to see every one this season. In fact he already has bought his season ticket, which incidentally is the first to be sold for the 1938 games.

Losing their highly efficient quartet, which entertained at the county jail earlier in the summer, was no deterrent to prisoners in the jail who have organized a new musical unit. This one is a band, with the members using paper stretched over combs for instruments. While they agree that the band still needs practice before it can compare with the quartet, deputy sheriffs believe that some of the "long termers" will have ample time to build the jail's musical department up to its former status before they "graduate" to state prisons or gain their freedom.

4 PASS TESTS

Qualify for 'Y' Certificates as Life Savers.

The successful completion of Y. M. C. A. life saving examinations by four persons was announced today by Ralph B. Chapman, general secretary at the "Y".

Three of the four passed the senior tests and one the junior. Senior tests were passed by Brad Smith, Ruth Von Wieder and Farnum Coffin. William Fisher passed the junior examinations.

The examinations were passed at the Liberty park pool under supervision of Russell Von Wieder, authorized Y. M. C. A. swimming instructor, and manager of the Liberty pool. The four are the first to pass the "Y" examinations at the pool this summer, according to Chapman, although others are expected to take the tests before the pool closes for the summer.

Those who pass the tests are given Y. M. C. A. certificates as life savers.

MAGILL QUILTS U. S. TAX POST

Advocate of Roosevelt Levy Plan Resigns to Return to Columbia University.

(By United Press)

HYDE PARK, N. Y.—President Roosevelt accepted today the resignation of Under Secretary of the Treasury Roswell Magill, the man credited with shaping many New Deal fiscal and tax policies. Magill's resignation becomes effective Sept. 15. In his letter to the president, he pointed out that he had agreed to leave his teaching affiliation at Columbia university, New York City, only until September this year, but would remain "on call" to serve the administration further if the president wished.

Magill obtained leave from Columbia where he is professor of law, in January, 1937.

Magill was the treasury department's tax expert. He was appointed under secretary in 1937, but had served the treasury twice before for extended periods as special consultant on tax legislation. In 1923 and 1924 he was special attorney and chief attorney in connection with consideration of the Revenue act of 1924. In 1933 he was appointed assistant secretary of the treasury.

Generally, he was considered an advocate of President Roosevelt's pet tax plans—the undistributed profits tax, which was virtually scuttled by congress, and the capital gains and losses tax, which was drastically modified.

ROOSEVELT CLEARS PATH TO BACK POPE AS INDEPENDENT

(By Associated Press)

HYDE PARK, N. Y.—President Roosevelt, condemning reported Republican intervention in Democratic primaries, cleared the way today for administration support of an independent senatorial campaign in Idaho.

The president said yesterday that decent political morality demanded that members of one party stay out of the primary elections of another party.

His statement was precipitated by a question regarding the political situation in Idaho where Sen. James P. Pope, a down-the-line administration supporter, recently was defeated for re-nomination by D. Worth Clark, who pledged he would not be a yes-man for the White House.

There has been talk that Pope—who charged he was defeated in the Democratic primary by Republican votes—might run for re-election as an independent.

The president said he did not know what Pope would do, or whether he would have administration backing if he should make an independent race.

But Mr. Roosevelt's condemnation of Republican intervention in the Idaho primary gave him an open path to support Pope if the latter should choose to run independently.

The president emphasized he was not concerned with individual candidates in his remarks about Republican intervention in Democratic primaries.

He said that when the members of one party go into the primary of another, they destroy the objective of the direct primary system. Such intervention, he added, prevents party voters from exercising their own will, and presents a question of simple political morality.

INVESTIGATORS INFORMED REDS SEEK ARMY AID

Department of Justice Opens Inquiry as Dies Probers Hear Boston Youths.

(By International News Service)
WASHINGTON—Heeding the request of the Dies house un-American activities committee, the department of justice has taken first steps in an investigation of recruiting of American youths for the war in Spain.

The investigation was urged by the committee today as the result of testimony of Abraham Sobel and Alvin Halpern, Boston youths, who said communists are engaged in recruiting men for the Spanish loyalist cause.

Officials of the department of justice sought information of the committee to aid them in the inquiry without waiting for the committee's official demand and a transcript of the testimony of Sobel and Halpern.

Tell of Fraud.
Immediately after the youths gave their graphic recital of their enlistment, including inducement to falsify their application for a United States passport, Rep. Mosler (D) of Ohio, moved that the matter be turned over to the justice department.

In demanding the inquiry, Mosler read provisions of law which he said make it a crime to induce Americans to enlist in foreign armies.

A letter written by R. B. Shipley, passport division of the state department, to Miss Margaret Kerr, of the Better America federation, of Los Angeles, in which Shipley said that Americans fighting abroad did not lose their citizenship, was made public by the committee.

Explaining that Americans fighting in foreign armies would expatriate themselves if they took a foreign oath of allegiance, Shipley added that the state department understands "that Americans serving in the Spanish and Chinese armies are not required to be naturalized in those countries or to take the oath of allegiance."

The committee's investigation, temporarily suspended here, is expected to be resumed in New York by a subcommittee within the next week or 10 days.

Chairman Martin Dies (D) of Texas, awaited a reply to the committee's letter to President Roosevelt, calling for aid. In the appeal to the president, the committee asserted that the department of justice had denied it aid even though the department had established a precedent by loaning men to the LaFollette senate civil liberties committee.

ILL 3 YEARS, DIES

F. E. Wetzel, 53, Was Veteran Employee of Empire Plant.

Frank Eugene Wetzel, 53, of 25 Washington avenue, an employee of the Empire Sheet & Tin Plate company for 22 years, died at his home Tuesday evening after an illness of three years.

Born in Massillon, March 22, 1885, Mr. Wetzel came to this city 25 years ago. He was in charge of the heating of the first steel ever rolled at what is now the Empire plant.

Roosevelt Talk Offends Duce's Newspaper, So We're Played Roughly

—By WESTBROOK PEGLER

NEW YORK—The president of the United States is the warden of his own tongue, but a reckless speech of the kind that he delivered last week at Kingston, Ont., may bring down dreadful consequences on his innocent subjects.

In this case it has happened, suddenly and terribly. Mr. Roosevelt's intemperate remarks about the brutality, as he perceives it, of the non-democratic countries, have offended the Bologna newspaper, Il Resto Del Carlino, an official organ of the Fascist party and thus a mouthpiece of Mussolini himself, and we are roughly denounced as a nation of gangsters.

Well, truth to tell, we had it coming to us. We are a land of gangsters, and that in spite of the missionary work of the Unione Siciliana and of Al. Frank and Ralph Capone, Albert Anselmi and John Scalesi, and of Big Jim Colosimo, who brought us the pure racial culture of the Abruzzi mountains and introduced efficiency and chain-store methods into the previously haphazard business of prostituting American girls from midwest towns and farms on the old Chicago line.

The business of brothel-keeping and seducing and transporting the native girls of this uncouth land has fallen into disorganization since Mr. Colosimo died under the fire of another missionary from the land of the Duce, and Big Jim's contribution to American civilization has been lost. Perhaps we were not yet ready for it.

The Bologna newspaper points out that Italy already had 20 centuries of civilization when an Italian discovered America, and has the benefit of 25 centuries now. A Colosimo, a Capone and their morals, culture and methods would be commonplace in a land of such ancient civilization, but they are a little advanced for us cultural parvenues, as we are called in Italy.

But give us time and we may one day even adopt a government modeled on the lines sketched for us by Al Capone, whose prototype was the Duce himself.

We somehow remain uncivilized, and much worse, a shade ungrateful, to a long roll of martyr missionaries who brought us such cultural refinements as back-stabbing, the one-way ride, the sack trick, the concrete-block trick, the sawed-off shotgun fired from ambush, countering, extortion, the pineapple and, in one copious word, civilization.

The roll of martyr missionaries is long and sad. Of the illustrious Brothers Genna of Chicago, three are dead—Mike the Devil, Bloody Angelo and Tony. Diamond Joe Esposito is dead. Gone are Frank Capone, Frankie Uale, Antonio Torchio, Sam Valente, Tony Russo, Tony Currington, Vincente Spessura, Joe Guinta, Joe Ferrero, Johnny Gaudino, Tony Lombardo and the Brothers D'Andrea—Tony, the counterfeiter, lawyer and politician, and Joe, the extortioner.

No longer does Frankie Marlowe, of the slot machines, answer to his name. Schemer Drucci is dead. Felipe Gnofio is dead.

Labriola, Cannelli, Raimondi, Oliveri, Tropea, Baldelli, Salomone, Nerone, Lolordo, Scalesi, Anselmi, Cavaretti, Allioti, Laspisa, Cantoni, Rizzotti, Sinacola—musical names, all—bespeaking the poetry of a beautiful civilization whose seeds they sowed on the barren ground of barbarian Chicago.

All dead in the service of civilization, but Scalesi and Anselmi, happily, had earthly riches as well as the treasures of the soul, and could pay, posthumously, to be returned to their dead Sicilian hills.

There Mussolini, on his pastoral rounds, may salute them with up-raised hand, and, perhaps, one day, adorn their graves with the insignia of the Order of the Crown, the same that he bestowed on Commendatore Tomaso Pendergast of Kansas City, where Jim Colosimo's system of brother-keeping is nurtured for a more cultural day in America.

HOLLYWOOD—Pardon me while I shed a tear. Just a little one. For See-moan See-moan, pronounced Gone. And the chance at Hollywood stardom that she muffed.

She's gone back to France, and I doubt that she'll be making herself unpopular.

Because of that, she has left Hollywood a valuable memento. It's a nearly complete list of things a would-be movie star shouldn't do, especially if she comes from a foreign country.

Simone did most of 'em. And it's too bad. She had one of the greatest chances for stardom ever given a newcomer (including a ton of advance ballyhoo which did more harm than good). But she's back in France today. You can't blame it all on excess drum-beating.

SHE landed in town on the wrong foot and stayed on its practically all the way. She hadn't been in Hollywood three days before she had tangled with the studio makeup man. Ernie Westmore was doing the usual experimental work on her hairdresser but it ended in a Simon-pure tantrum. This is sometimes known as Asserting One's Importance.

She hadn't been around long, either, before workers began noticing an odd circumstance. Before she came, the word from the east was that this little French girl knew how to talk English. In Hollywood she didn't. There were times when she could scarcely understand this funny new language—when studio workers wanted some co-operation. And yet they do say that in the business office, when she was talking turkey, she hadn't any trouble making herself clear.

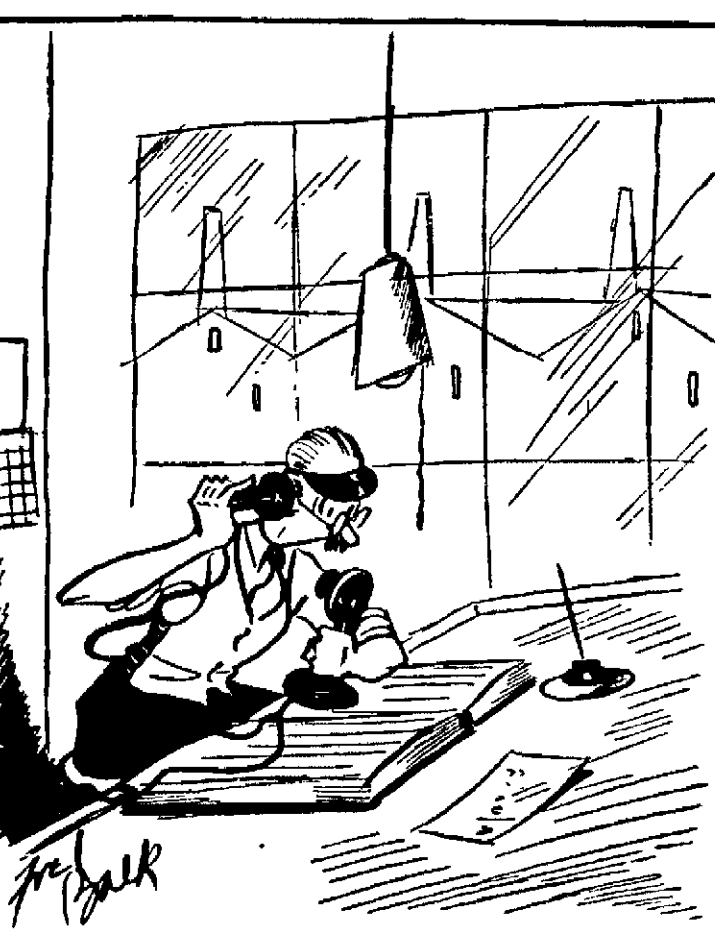

THERE was always a lot of talk about Simone's illnesses during production. They had to rush Claudette Colbert into "Under Two Flags" when Simone broke down. June Lang took her place in another picture with Warner Baxter. And "Josette" was held up for days while Simone, in the hospital, was "endeavoring herself" to all the nurses with her temper tantrums. There were some unkind cynics who insisted Simone did her collapsing when the going got toughest, but all I know is that

Giants, Cascos Win Playoffs At Fairground

Defeat Reds, Tigers, Respectively, to Gain Titles.

The Shaughnessy play-off championships of the city recreation junior baseball leagues in which the American Athletic Institute trophies were at stake were won by the Giants and Cascos Athletics yesterday at the Fairground.

The Giants, who won the Junior league title, climaxed their season successfully by defeating the Reds, 9 to 6, in the play-off finals. After giving up four runs in the first inning, Wentz settled down to hold the Reds to two tallies thereafter.

Nichalows and Robinson hit home runs for the Giants, who never trailed after tallying four runs in the second.

Emmer's triple in the sixth inning enabled the Athletics to take the measure of the Tigers. Intermediate league champions, 6 to 5, in the other finals. The Athletics took a 5-run lead in the first two innings, but the Tigers knotted the count in the fifth.

The Athletics secured only five hits off the delivery of Freilheit, while his teammates obtained seven off Sheriff, who struck out 16 and issued only one walk in the seven-inning game.

LeMunyon and Henry of the beaten Tigers hit circuit blows.

Burke Holds Stroke Lead

Myles Second in Ohio Open at Youngstown.

YOUNGSTOWN — (NS) — Billy Burke, former national open champion and pre-tournament favorite, today held a one-stroke lead as the final 36 holes of the Ohio open golf championship tourney got under way at Youngstown Country club.

Burke had 72-72-144, even par. Right behind him, one over par, was Reggie Myles, of Columbia Hills, south of Cleveland. Myles was even par on the first 18, but went over on the second round.

The rest of the field strung out behind Albert Alcroft, of Youngstown, who had 73-73-148. Bob Servis, of Dayton, had a 149, and Al Marchi, his fellow townsman, a 150. Mel Carpenter, of Columbus, and Ed Kerby, of Akron, had 151's.

Jack Collins of Mansfield Westbrook withdrew from the Ohio Open after shooting a 79 on the first 18.

PATTY HEADS TOWARD NINTH TOURNEY TITLE

CHICAGO — (NS) — Patty Berg of Minneapolis headed toward her ninth 1938 tournament title today as the 38th closed tourney of the Women's Western Golf association entered its second round of eight matches at Olympia Fields Country club.

Miss Berg, playing golf equal to any in her career, shot a three under par 76 yesterday to equal the tournament's medal score and eliminate Dorothy Traung of San Francisco, champion in 1936.

OPEN FOOTBALL SEASON PHILADELPHIA

PHILADELPHIA — (NS) — Replete with fireworks, military drill and even swing music that combined to give the program a hint of the bizarre, the All Star-Philadelphia Eagles annual College vs. Professional football argument was all set for debate at Temple University stadium tonight.

Ohio Farmer Breaks 791 'Birds' In Row

VANDALIA — (CP) — Joe Heistand, bronzed farmer from Hillsboro, O., today held a world trapshooting record comparable to Babe Ruth's baseball mark of 60 home runs in a single season.

Heistand's gun has blasted 791 times and not once during that string, begun more than two weeks ago, has it failed to shatter a target.

Chances are that before the end of Grand American Trapshooting tournament, now in its third day, Heistand will have lengthened his string. After cracking his 791st bird yesterday, he put away his gun, his amazing run unfinished.

LEWIS, MARTIN CONFER TODAY FOR 'SHOWDOWN'

UAW President Meets CIO's 'Boss' in Washington as Fight Finale Nears.

(By International News Service) WASHINGTON—John L. Lewis, eager for an end to the United Automobile Workers' warfare over leadership that is endangering the entire structure of his CIO labor empire, faced UAW President Homer Martin in a "showdown" conference today.

Martin, the former parson, was virtually summoned by Lewis to the capital after lengthy parleys yesterday between the CIO chief and representatives of both Martin and the faction which is striving to wrest union control from him. Feeling was general that the months-long dispute has come to a head.

Lewis, when the fight broke into the open, called for an early settlement—a settlement which thus far has not even been approached.

Fight Over Expulsion.

Martin, charging five former high UAW officials with attempting to sabotage the union's "20-point policy program," had brought proceedings which resulted in expulsion of four and suspension of the fifth. Four of these five men, along with five of their supporters, participated in the second conference yesterday.

They were Richard Frankenstein, Windham Mortimer and Ed Hall, ousted vice-presidents, and Walter Wells, suspended vice-president. George Addes, former UAW secretary-treasurer, was not present. This group brought to Lewis' desk resolutions approved by a convention of their supporters in Toledo last week, calling for immediate intervention by the CIO to end the dispute.

If Lewis declines to intervene, a special convention of the union must be called within 60 days, the Toledo convention ruled.

Therein lies the nub of the controversy at present. Convocation of a special convention, where Martin could be voted out of office depends entirely on the wish of the UAW president and he, asserting sufficient signatures on a petition for such a convention have not been forthcoming, has refused to call one. The Frankenstein forces contend that 702 delegates from 70 locals, representing 240,000 out of an estimated 350,000 UAW membership, attended the Toledo convention.

Lewis was reticent following yesterday's conference. He conferred with R. J. Thomas, UAW vice-president and leader of the pro-Martin delegation, before he saw the Frankenstein group.

MEETS WITH LEWIS

WASHINGTON—(U.P.)—David Dubinsky, president of the International Ladies Garment Workers Union, who is seeking a new basis for settling the war between the American Federation of Labor and the Committee for Industrial Organization, conferred secretly for three hours yesterday with CIO Chairman John L. Lewis, it was learned today.

HIT BY BLAZE

Town's 13 Buildings Destroyed by Early Morning Fire.

HARDIN—(U.S.)—The entire business district of Hardin was wiped out by fire early today. Thirteen buildings including the postoffice in which the telephone exchange was located, were destroyed completely.

The fire began at 4:30 a. m., from an undetermined cause, and quickly spread over the three-block long business district.

TUNNEL CAVE-IN BURIES WORKER

ST. CLAIRSVILLE—(U.S.)—Heavy truck traffic over U. S. route 40 was blamed today for the cave-in of a section of a tunnel on a branch line of the Wheeling and Lake Erie railroad which trapped and killed an itinerant worker.

NO PENALTY YET ON LATE TAXES

Treasurer Says It Will Take Two Weeks Yet To Close Books.

Although he refused to announce an official extension of time for paying second half real estate taxes, County Treasurer John E. Kolb said today he would accept delayed payments for about two weeks without collecting a penalty.

"It will require nearly two weeks to check our mail collections and during that time we will accept payments at the office without adding the penalty," Kolb said.

Receipts today had mounted to $485,200, or about $84,000 below the treasurer's goal for the second half period. Tax books closed last Saturday.

'STEAM DEATH' ARRESTS NEAR

Coroner Blames Prison Guards in Scalding of Four Philadelphia Convicts.

(Continued From Page 1) water on the floors. But this was not enough, he said, and soon it was a question of only one man in each cell surviving—the man strong enough to fight off the others and keep his face near the tiny slot in each cell door.

The doors themselves, Hersch said, and other metal work in the cells became so hot that they burned at touch. Hours later one live and two dead convicts were taken from each cell.

"The deaths of the prisoners was due to suffocation applied by an outside agency," Hersch said. "We have ascertained that one of the guards said, 'Let's give 'em the heat.' Later orders were given to turn on the heat. What we want to know is who gave the order, did it come from a higher-up, or was it motivated by a personal grudge?"

"I propose to remain in charge. Before I am finished everyone responsible for this revolting situation will be punished. After I have established responsibility for the deaths, the investigation will be held in the open."

Besides Hersch's, three other investigations—two by state agencies and one by Philadelphia police—were under way.

LOSES $79,115

Tube Company Reports Deficit to Stockholders.

SHELBY—A net loss of $79,115.97 in operation for the first six months of 1938 for the Ohio Seamless Tube company in this city was reported today in a statement sent to stockholders by W. C. Connelly, president.

The net sales for the six-month period were 61 1/2 per cent below those of the corresponding period in 1937, Connelly reported. The company has added several sales outlets and other improvements to regain the business.

In the report, cash and government securities were set at $516,274.42, current assets at $1,106,144.63, while current liabilities totaled $68,499.24. The ratio of current assets to liabilities is 16 to 1, Connelly disclosed.

'PERJURY' CRY HEARD AT TRIAL

Tammany Leader's Attorney Prepares to Question Schultz Gangster.

(Continued From Page 1) his way up from smalltime gambling to the business membership of Schultz' rich racket—testified he frequently gave Hines $500 or more a week in 1933, 1934 and 1935.

As political front for the racket, the witness testified, Hines interceded with Magistrate Hulon Capshaw—now under suspension—in November, 1932, to dismiss the prisoners in a policy bank raid, among who was Weinberg himself.

Other Cases Dismissed.

The case was dismissed, Weinberg added. He said also that another policy bank case was dismissed by the late Magistrate Francis J. Erwin, named by District Attorney Thomas E. Dewey with Capshaw as having been influenced by Hines.

In May or June, 1933, Weinberg testified, Hines promised to "get rid of" the entire squad of Chief Police Inspector John O'Brien which had been harassing the Schultz combination, and in the following October, five men were removed from the inspector's staff.

COUNCIL GROUP STUDIES CLAIMS

Six Totalling $2,700 Referred to Committee; One Asks for $2,000 Damages.

Council's claims committee, headed by Arthur L. Croak, faced some extra work today as it took under consideration six claims totaling $2,772 referred to it by Council President Karl P. Troll at last night's special session.

Largest of the claims was submitted by Frank G. Witters, Ashland road, who seeks $2,000 property damage as the result of the improvement of Central avenue last year.

Another submitted by former City Patrolman Harry Copper, 401 St. Clair street, asks $300 for damage caused by the improper drainage of storm water across his property.

A claim presented by G. A. Doran, 1059 Park avenue west, asks $168 damages for cellar repairs caused by a break in a storm sewer June 25 in front of his home.

Paul Kozik, 185 Lida street, submitted a claim for $86 for damages incurred to his furnace and supplies by the sanitary sewer backing up in his cellar.

Two protests were received against the assessments on property for sanitary sewer construction.

R. S. Gibson, 61 Brinkerhoff avenue, complained of an assessment of $97 on a Chilton avenue property. He said the assessment was "exorbitant and illegal" as the tax valuation of the property was only $80.

Mrs. Lila B. Schraedley, Overlook avenue, claimed that the assessment on her property for the construction of a sanitary sewer in the amount of $120 was "excessive."

ASHLAND—Clarence Baker, Ashland, was fined $100 and costs and committed to the Akron workhouse until the fine is paid on being convicted of driving while intoxicated, on arraignment in the court of C. W. Chorpene, police judge.

MYSTERY WOMAN IN BLACK AT VALENTINO'S GRAVE, JUST MYTH

HOLLYWOOD—The treasured Hollywood legend of the woman in black who paid an annual visit to the grave of Rudolph Valentino was dissipated today when it developed that she never had existed except in a movie producer's mind.

She was the producer's brainchild, hired for $5 one afternoon 10 years ago to pose kneeling at the great lover's statue while the cameras turned. That started the whole chain of events, which reached their zenith yesterday, on the 12th anniversary of Valentino's death, when at least three mysterious women in black appeared at his tomb.

Photographers, who kept a dawn-to-dusk vigil at the white marble mausoleum in Hollywood cemetery, looked carefully at each succeeding woman and finally pictured the one who looked the blondest and the prettiest under her heavy black veil.

Revelation of the true facts concerning the origin of the mysterious woman was made at the cemetery. Caretaker Roger Peterson, who has become Hollywood's leading Valentino authority, was dumbfounded.

"I was producing one reel shorts a decade ago," Russell Birdwell, now functioning as head publicist for Selznick International studios, said. "One of my pictures was called 'The Other Side of Hollywood.' In it I tried to show little-known characters and scenes. Peter the Hermit figured in one sequence.

"The statue of Valentino featured another, only I decided that the statue alone seemed lifeless. So I hired a girl whose name I no longer remember, dressed her in black, and had her kneel at the feet.

"The narrator did the rest. He did a beautiful job. He told the audiences from the sound track that this was the mysterious woman in black who always came at dusk on the anniversary of Valentino's death, to grieve. Accordingly to him this woman of mystery never had missed such a date with her beloved and never had identified herself to the mystified bystanders.

"I thought no more about it. The picture was widely shown in theaters here and elsewhere. It wasn't long before there appeared in print articles about the Valentino mystery woman.

"After a year or so had passed, Poth, lot 6.548, Mansfield. John P. Finnegan, et al., to Howard J. Finnegan, 20 acres in Sharontownship.

'LIES, ALL LIES,' SAYS HINES OF WITNESS' STORY

'Very Exciting,' Says Wife of Political Leader at Rackets Trial.

By EDWIN C. HILL (INS Staff Correspondent.) NEW YORK—As George Weinberg, Dutch Schultz's principal lieutenant in the policy racket, resumed his testimony just before noon today, and continued his vicious attacks against the integrity and character of James J. Hines, Hines solemnly vowed to this writer his absolute innocence.

"I tell you," he said, "that I feel like vomiting as I sit here and listen to that fellow telling lies after lie. Only once has he dared to look me in the face. For a moment his gaze met mine and then he turned his head quickly away. There is not one act attributed to me which is based on fact—every word that Weinberg has testified to concerning me is a deliberate and wretched falsehood. You can never make me believe that the jury will believe such testimony as that."

Wife Holds Hand.

Jimmy Hines' sweet faced wife, still beautiful in her middle age with her great dark eyes and flawless complexion, held her husband's hand as we chatted. I said to her, "If you will pardon me, Mrs. Hines, it must be a painful experience for you to sit in this court room and hear such things said about Mr. Hines."

"I find it very exciting," she said with a wry smile.

"Well that is certainly a sporting attitude," I suggested.

"She has always been a good sport," said Jimmy Hines.

"And you have always been a swell husband," said the lady.

It is pretty hard to listen to Hines as he looks you squarely in the eye and emphatically asserts his absolute innocence and his assertion that he is being framed by a chain of crooks.

If the man is guilty he is an actor of such consummate ability as would have placed him in the class of Edwin Booth or Richard Mansfield.

Hardly had Hines finished proclaiming his innocence, when Weinberg took the stand and testified that before the city election of 1933, Dutch Schultz instructed him to give Hines all the money that Hines wanted as a campaign contribution.

REGISTER NOW

Enrollment Starts at John Simpson Junior High.

Registration of all new students in the John Simpson Junior high school district opened today at the school, it was announced by H. J. Dotson, principal.

Pupils asked to register for the coming school year are those who have moved to Mansfield during the summer and intend to enter Simpson in September, and any seventh and eighth grade pupils who lived in the Hedges school district last year, and moved to the Simpson district during the summer.

Students who attended the school last year and will continue there this year, and those transferred to Simpson from Hedges Junior high school by promotion, do not have to register, Dotson said. The school office will be open for registrations Monday through Friday, between the hours of 8:30 a. m. and 4 p. m. New students to the district are asked to register as soon as possible.

PWA GRANT FOR SCHOOLS READY

Regional Director Tells Board Money to Be Allotted When City Puts Up Its Share.

A federal PWA grant of $450,000 for Mansfield's proposed school building program is ready for allocation to the board of education when the city approves a proposed $550,000 bond issue, L. A. Boulay, regional PWA director, told the board today.

In a letter to Dr. John H. Bristor, board clerk, Boulay said the federal funds, which were earmarked for the Mansfield school project Aug. 13, had been released at Washington and will be allocated when the matching funds are provided by the school board.

The school board will resubmit its bond issue at a special election Sept. 20. The proposal was defeated at the Aug. 9 primary by 383 votes. A 65 per cent majority vote is required to pass the issue.

All federal funds allotted this year under the PWA program must be matched by Oct. 1, and construction on the project must be under way by Jan. 1, 1939, PWA officials said.

The combined local and federal funds would finance a $1,000,000 building program, including construction of two new junior high schools, an addition to Senior high school, and modernization of eight elementary buildings in Mansfield.

TWO WORLDS + + +

CHAPTER 24

"All right," Ruth turned again. Then once more she turned to Noel. "You don't look well at all. And you needn't think I'm going to have two sick girls on my hands. I want you to go to a doctor tomorrow and have him give you a tonic to build you up." She stopped then, and after a pause went on a little self-consciously. "I don't mean for you to go to Doctor Paige. He's too busy to be bothered with a tonic prescription. There are lots of good doctors in the Medical Arts. I recommend Doctor Archer on the fifth floor."

Noel looked at her with a little half-smile. She knew if she had to follow Ruth Chester's directions and go to a doctor, she would at least choose her own. And it would be Julian Paige.

THE NEXT morning a little past 8, Noel found herself on her way to Julian's office. She had never been inside his office before, though once or twice she had stood outside the door.

She found that he had two rooms, a waiting room furnished rather shabbily, and the room he used for consultations with patients, on the closed door of which was written "Private."

Noel took a seat in the outer waiting room, and looked around. The shabby rug was rumpled in places. There was a table containing some well-worn magazines. And a number of chairs.

Several people, evidently patients, were sitting around the room. In one corner there was a girl behind a small table on which there were two telephones. She wore a cheap looking red silk dress, and her sandy hair was done up in tight curls all over her head.

She looked at Noel indifferently when she came in, and continued her conversation with a red-haired young man with pimples who wore the uniform of a bus driver.

Noel picked up a magazine. At that moment the inside door opened and a man came out. The girl behind the table called out, "Next, please," in a rather shrill voice.

A woman who appeared to be about 40, girlishly dressed in expensive clothes and reeking with perfume, rose and started to the inner door.

"You're not next," the girl called out in her unpleasant voice. "I'm tired of waiting," the woman said pettishly. "Besides, I know dear Doctor Paige doesn't know I'm here, or he wouldn't let me wait." There was a suggestion of a sinner in her voice.

"You'll have to wait your turn," the girl said indifferently. "I'm next," a young man spoke up from behind a newspaper. "She can go in my place, and I'll wait." The girl at the desk shrugged and turned again to the young man in uniform, while the woman moved immediately toward the door, and opened it with her head held high.

"These society dames gave me a pain," the girl said, sliding deeper into her chair. "They think the whole world must stop for them. And there's not a thing the matter with her, either. She's just got a crush on the doctor." Then she gave a giggle. "But he knows how to get rid of dames."

like her."

She was, of course, talking to the young man in the uniform, but Noel couldn't very well help overhearing. She soon found that the girl was right. Only about two seconds elapsed before the door was opened again, and the air was once more filled with perfume. The woman's voice came heavily, "Thank you so much, doctor. You're such a comfort. Now, are you real sure you can't have dinner with me tonight?"

Noel heard Julian's voice courteous but firm, declining the invitation. The woman left the office with a flourish. The girl behind the table, which did service as a desk, called out "Next," and a man got up and disappeared behind the closed door.

At last it was Noel's turn. She went in to find Julian bent over his desk with his face between his fingers. He said, not looking up, "Just a minute, please."

Noel took a chair near his big roll-top desk and waited. A minute or two passed, then Julian turned around in his swivel chair and faced her.

He drew a quick, sharp breath. "Noel!" he exclaimed in surprise. Then asked, "Have you been ill?"

She shook her head. "I'm never ill. Laurie is, however," she went on, "and your very efficient nurse insisted that I see a doctor. She didn't say for me to come to you. In fact, she rather insisted that I see another doctor, a Doctor Archer, I believe, but I—well, I had my own ideas," she finished with a little ghost of a smile.

Then she went on, some of the old bitterness rising in her voice. "Of course I know you have no responsibility toward me now, but perhaps professionally—" her voice broke, and she could not finish.

"That was not very kind, Noel," Julian said. And added, "I'm glad you came to me. If you had not, I should have felt—" he stopped. Then went on, "You do look tired, Noel. Too much dancing and excitement, I'd say. I shall prescribe a rest and a complete change. Say the Riviera—Aix-les-Bains. Or if you should prefer Paris," he gave a little shrug. "It should be nice there in the Bois with the chestnut trees in bloom. Yes, I think after all, I shall insist on Paris."

"It wouldn't do any earthly good," Noel retorted.

"You mean you wouldn't follow my prescription?"

"I certainly would not."

"I seem to remember that you are a very stubborn young lady," Julian said, his voice tense.

Suddenly Noel said unhappily, "Are we going to quarrel again, Julian?"

And Julian's voice came, briskly professional, "Certainly not. We haven't time. Then he said in a low voice, "We do seem to have a queer propensity for hurting each other, don't we?"

Thence once again he lapsed into his professional manner, drew a pad from a cubbyhole of his desk, and wrote upon it rapidly. "Have this filled. It will help you. It's a mild tonic, nothing more." He glanced toward the door.

Noel knew that she was being dismissed. But it was hard to go. Julian looked tired and worn, and his bronzed face was thinner. She couldn't even see the little incipient dimple in his chin. But then, of course, that only came out, seemingly, when he smiled.

"You haven't been taking care of yourself, Julian," she said suddenly.

"I am tired," he admitted. "Got to manage for a day in the country before long. Of course we doctors don't have many days off."

Noel smiled with tender reminiscence, thinking of their day on the river, when Julian had thrown away his dignity and had behaved like a happy boy. All of a sudden, she said impulsively, "I've missed you, Julian."

His face seemed to harden, as if he were struggling to put a barrier between them. "That is flattering," he said, "when you consider the number of men paying you devoted homage."

"And that—is unkind," Noel said in a low voice.

Julian looked contrite. "I'm sorry," he said, and added in a voice that was not quite steady, "forgive me my dear I'm—a little overworked, I suppose."

Noel managed a smile. "Of course I forgive you." Then she added, "I would never have thought of coming here had it not been for Miss Chester. She made me promise to go to a doctor."

Julian's tired face relaxed in a smile now. "She's determined like that, one of the best nurses I ever saw. Somehow she nearly always manages to get her way about things."

Noel had reached the door now, so he had said goodby. She went out with Julian's last words, echoing ominously in her mind.

So Ruth Chester had a manner of getting her way about things did she? Did that mean that she would probably get Julian, too, because she was determined to have him?

When Noel reached home, there was no change in Laurie. Ruth Chester was consulting with Doctor Merridew, who was on the point of leaving.

Remembering Laurie's pitiful plea, Noel made another search for some clue as to who Jimmy might be. A sudden thought came. Laurie's purse. She hadn't looked in it. There might be a card or a picture or something.

Then Noel heard something crackle against the lining in one of the small compartments. She drew out a letter. Even before she opened it, she knew it was from Jimmy.

WHY FALSE TEETH WEARERS HAVE BAD BREATH

Millions Suffer Without Knowing!

You can't notice any odor from your plate or bridge—but others can! Dentists call this odor "denture breath" and it's serious. It comes from a mucin-scum that collects on plates and bridges. This scum is almost invisible—but it can make your breath so bad that friends shudder. It can breed decay-bacteria that infect your other teeth, actually hurt your health and spoil your pleasure.

Ordinary brushing can't get this scum off plate or bridge—can't protect you against "denture breath." But just try Polident! Polident not only cleans—it actually purifies plates and bridges without brushing. It gets every bit of scum, tartar, stain and odor —dissolves it away and leaves your plate sweet and clean as new.

Your breath will be fresher, your mouth feel cleaner—and your plate last longer and look better. Polident is approved by dental authorities. Good Housekeeping and tens of thousands of delighted users. Long-lasting can costs only 30c at any drug store.

POLIDENT
Cleans, Purifies

SOHIO MOTOR OIL

Premium Quality

THE STANDARD OIL COMPANY (OHIO)

Only 25¢ A QUART plus tax

Crucial "V.I." test shows your motor is safer with SOHIO Motor Oil!

Flows fast like "light" oil for high-speed lubrication, yet resists heat like "heavy" oil!

Just how safe is the big investment you have wrapped up in that automobile of yours? The answer lies in the cryptic engineering symbol "V. I."!

In simple terms, the higher the "V. I." rating of an oil, the greater its ability to stay the same general consistency, to offer the same protection—regardless of changes in temperature. Such oil actually resists thickening when cold—and resists thinning out when hot. It doesn't let you or your motor down—just when you need protection the most!

Naturally, the higher the "V. I." the better the oil... the better it protects... the better it stands up under terrific motor temperatures... the better it lasts... the less oil you use between drains—the more economical it is.

Today—SOHIO Motor Oil enjoys one of the highest "V. I." ratings in the world. Yet you pay only 25c a quart. That's why SOHIO Motor Oil is three times more popular with Ohioans than any other premium quality lubricant. Next time—get SOHIO Motor Oil—and get better protection as well as low oil consumption.

WEDNESDAY, AUGUST 24, 1938.

Politics and lawsuits are conducted on the same plan; advocates of both sides claim everything and concede nothing.

Clerical and professorial experimenters who are trying to mix religion with communism should be careful not to produce a high explosive.

Now that August 15 has passed without outbreak of the general European war that had been forecast, there still remains the dire prophecy that the world will come to an end in September—again.

Getting Ready for School.

THE "long" summer vacation is almost over. Within another couple of weeks schools and colleges will be re-opening.

It's high time for parents of Mansfield's almost seven thousand school children to be completing preparations for a return of school days, as well as for parents of the other thousands of children who will attend schools in Richland and neighboring counties.

There are always some needs in clothing or items of school equipment that must be looked after within the last couple of weeks before school opens—and there is also the advantage of a health, vision and dental check-up during a period when time is available for a visit to the doctor and dentist without interfering with school attendance.

What children between the ages of six and eighteen get out of their school work is largely dependent on the degree of co-operation that parents give to teachers and other school authorities in matters of attention to health, home environment and good conduct outside of school hours.

A part of the responsibility resting on parents is to make sure that their children are provided with their reasonable needs in advance of the opening day of school.

Fire Takes 7,500 Lives.

THIS year, if past precedent holds, some 1,500 people will be cremated in burning buildings. Six thousand more will die as the results of burns and scalds.

When an airplane crashes and a dozen people burn to death, the world is horrified. Yet the public at large is callous to the fact that the annual total of deaths from fires is greater than the toll would be from 600 airplanes carrying to flaming doom 12 persons each.

Practically every one of those thousands of fire deaths could be prevented. Due to the carelessness of adults, children are among the principal sufferers. Unprotected stoves, matches left about, steam and hot water—these are major causes of death and suffering among the very young. Death takes no holiday when those things which may cause fires and scalds are within reach of a child's untought, exploring fingers.

Equally dangerous, particularly in the case of adults, is the practice of starting stoves and furnaces with kerosene, gasoline or other inflammable liquids.

It is easy to prevent a fire—but it is impossible to ever make up for the consequences of a fire that takes a life.

Return of the Beavers.

RESTORATION of beavers to their original haunts and activities is one of the sensible changes of our American attitude toward wild life.

Beaver colonies have already been re-established in various western forest areas, in appreciation of their value as conservationists. Now it is proposed to recolonize old beaver haunts in the east, including the chief national parks in Virginia, the Great Smoky mountains, headwaters along the borders of North Carolina and Tennessee and the Acadia National park in Maine. The movement may spread to the Alleghenies, Appalachians and Adirondacks generally.

One of the first forms of exploitation of this new continent was to loot the beaver communities to provide pelts for Europe. Americans, too, consumed their full share of the furs. Timber men came to regard beavers as enemies because they felled trees and cluttered up the woods. All that the beavers did in that line was nothing to what their human enemies did.

It Could Happen Anywhere.

OF COURSE all voters should know that ballots must be marked with a BLACK LEAD PENCIL. That is the law and if ink or colored pencil is used by a voter in marking a ballot at a primary, special or general election, the vote doesn't count.

Ordinarily a few ballots wrongly marked do not change the result of an election. But it isn't safe to bank on this.

Downs in Athens, for instance, one supporter of the Athens township school bond issue used a fountain pen to mark his ballot. Therefore his vote didn't count.

The school bond issue failed to meet the required 65 per cent majority by JUST ONE VOTE!

Chinese War Strategy.

THE MOST effective fighting in China, is the widespread activity of guerrilla bands. They do not fight any real battles. They operate by stealth, striking unexpectedly and often at night. They cut the invader's lines of communication, deprive him of provisions and supplies. They hit and run. They become a secret terror, destroying the enemy's morale.

They are the field branch of a widespread national organization which grows steadily in numbers, power, self-consciousness and patriotism, working in league with Chinese farmers and business men. They maintain the support of the people in general by abandoning the ruthless methods of the old Chinese guerrillas. They are considerate of civilians and, so far as they are able, they pay for what they get. When they are obliged to take money, they give official receipts or token money in return, which passes current and has the backing of the national government.

"Time is on our side," says General Lu Cheng Tsao, commander of this invisible army. "We must never risk a decisive battle. My army cannot win this war in the field, but we are going to prolong the struggle until Japan collapses."

Watching Trends

—By PRESTON GROVER

WASHINGTON—From a liquor standpoint this country is turning into a legislative Balkans. State arrays itself against state, enacting first one law and then another to shut out competitive liquor. Already it is down to a point where various states seem to be in need of reciprocal trade treaties.

It all started with the 21st amendment to the Constitution which provides, as a protection to the dry states, that no liquor could be imported into a state in violation of its laws. That sounded just fine to all concerned until California (these native sons are enacting) enacted a law imposing a $500 tax on wholesalers bringing beer into the state from other states.

In effect it was simply a tariff to protect California beer brewers. Evidently nobody had thought of that possibility arising out of the 21st amendment. But it did. And the supreme court said the act was strictly in accord with the last amendment, even if it did upset that earlier part of the Constitution which prohibited any state setting up barriers to commerce among the states.

Follow the Leader.

CALIFORNIA, with plenty of wine to sell, soon saw a warning light and repealed its law, but the seed was sown. Other states began taking it up. Indiana imposed a $1,500 special tax on wholesalers who imported out-of-state beer, and Minnesota added some flourishes by prohibiting import of hard liquor unless it was either a patented brand or had been re-processed in Minnesota after importation.

The Minnesota law came quickly to the supreme court and brought out one of the strangest colloquies the supreme court has heard in days. The following quotations are not exact but the substance is there:

"Minnesota argues," said the state attorney general in effect, "that it may impose any terms it chooses upon the importation of liquor and it will be constitutional under the 21st amendment."

"Do you mean," asked Chief Justice Hughes in effect, "that if Minnesota says that out-of-state liquor may be imported only by people who wear a certain kind of clothes, such legislation will be valid? Let me put it another way. Do you mean that the state could enact a law permitting importation of liquor only by those who voted a certain way, and it would be valid?"

The state attorney general thought that one over for a long moment, then answered: "Yes."

And what happened? The supreme court upheld the Minnesota law.

Confusion Confounded.

BUT the thing has now become even more entangled. Missouri evidently tired of having its liquor shut out of state after state. Missouri makes several prominent brands of beer. So it said, in effect, that any state which enacts legislation discriminating against Missouri liquor can't ship its liquor into Missouri. Michigan enacted a similar law. Immediately five prominent distilleries, including the big Schenley outfit, brought suit against Missouri to test the constitutionality of such a law. The Indianapolis Brewing company brought similar suit against the Michigan liquor commission.

Lower federal courts have upheld both the Michigan and Missouri acts and the liquor makers have appealed to the supreme court.

A Farmer's Diary

Feeding Her Brood.

—By CALVIN A. BYERS

AFTER the evening chores, I walked across the farm to see how the second brood of a field sparrow was getting on. A warm wind blew across the curving slopes of the buckwheat field, and set the silvery sheen of bloom rippling into frothy waves. Above the bordering woods, a solitary hawk soared in the amber sky.

Two days ago the field sparrow's brood was hatched. I came upon them when they had just crawled from the tiny shells. The mother bird had shoved most of the shells out of the nest, except such bits as still clung to the sparse down of the babies.

Today I was surprised to see how big they were, and how well trained to sounds that might mean food. Each stretching bony neck held up an open mouth, ready for some tempting worm. I hid and remained still, to watch the evening feeding. The mother flew away, and less than a minute elapsed before she was back, to give the foremost open beak a tiny insect.

I wondered if she gave this one little bird more than his share, since he seemed the most eager, and the largest. I wondered which one she would feed the second time. After a short pause, during which she cleaned house, and rearranged the nest with her legs and beak so that it was warm and dry, she flew down the hedge in eager search. She grabbed a small, drab worm as it was slowly moving up a dry white cedar post.

Immediately, she flew above the nest and gave a chirp. Three little necks were hoisted high, and the little beaks were stretched so wide, you would think the food could fall right through. Then, to my surprise, she gave the wriggling worm, a meaty morsel, to the little fellow farthest back, and seemed to watch him gulp it down with pleasure, as if to say, "You are the smallest and need the richest food." I'm sure I saw deep satisfaction in that sparrow's face—a humane expression that language cannot tell.

And people dress well here. There is an easy formality to the general picture. During summer in New York people go around in sport shirts and shirt sleeves, frequently without ties. They dress to suit their own moods. It isn't like that in New Orleans. You dress comfortably, but you don't sit down to dinner without a necktie or coat.

Native Orleansians are devoted to sea foods, of which there is always an abundance. When the shrimp fleet goes out each season it is blessed by high dignitaries of the church. Shrimp are very important here, they are a culture, and you can never hope to be a connoisseur until you know the difference between river shrimp and lake shrimp.

CRABS, both hardshell and soft shell, are obtainable at all seasons. And they are surprisingly inexpensive. In the west end, a number of notable but small seafood diners where bathers emerge from the water and appease their appetites over quantities of clams, shrimp, oysters and other gifts from the sea. This is one of the things to do—go swimming at night and follow with a seafood dinner.

At night the bars and supper clubs in the exclusive hotels are always crowded. The Roosevelt bar is perhaps the most unusual in the city. It is brand new. It is paneled entirely in African walnut, the wood coming from a gigantic tree. To this unusual setting Paul Ninas has lent four murals, the subject matter of which are peculiar to the Deep South. There is a cotton picking scene, a market scene, a river front scene, and a procession of tourists on a tour of the French Quarter. All are in brilliant colors and set in graceful curves.

IT WAS here that Meigs Frost, newspaperman and local character, introduced me to the El Dictador. This is a cocktail based on rum. The story goes that some friend of his returned from Cuba very angry at the El Presidente, which is the strongest of Cuban cocktails. So they staged a revolution and invented the El Dictador, because a dictator, they explain, can kick the pants off a president.

Meigs Frost is one of two "institutions" here that visiting scribes will do well to communicate with. The other is Mel Washburn. They can save many hours for you because they know everybody and everybody's telephone number. Both have been newspapermen for years. They know New Orleans as you know your own attic. They know it as O. Henry knew New York.

Harlem youngsters could learn a neat trick from the little Negro boys in the Quarter. You walk along and suddenly one of them leaps to his feet and begins to tap. All the little boys wear taps on their shoes. And they tap in front of you, looking back over their shoulders, until you toss them a coin. It's another of the countless vignettes of New Orleans you never forget.

England's System More Flexible

—By CHARLES P. STEWART

WASHINGTON—(Continued): We were discussing the English national electoral system, as compared with ours.

It is agreed, I take it, that an English administration is entitled to try to influence an election—not crookedly but by argument, both offensive and defensive. I don't assert that an American administration is unentitled to do so, but it's disputed, as in the case of President Roosevelt's present activities.

OUR PLAN MAY DEADLOCK.

What ensues when an English ministry (administration) calls an election, as we're having one in the U. S. A.?

Why, if that ministry's side wins, it continues in power with an assurance of parliamentary backing for a while. This automatically follows under the English system. But if the erstwhile ministry is beaten, the other side comes in, executive and legislative branches both. The whole thing is settled for the time being.

Here, in our coming election, the Republicans and anti-New Deal Democrats hold their congressional own, we shall continue with more or less of a deadlock—a holdover New Deal administration with a congress it can't depend on.

ENGLISH SYSTEM FLEXIBLE.

The beauty of the English system is, it is very responsive to the popular will—to changes in national sentiment.

There an election can be held any time and alter the entire setup.

Our system permits elections only arbitrarily specified intervals. Between any two of them public opinion can undergo a complete transformation, but it has to wait until the next election day to express itself effectively.

Moreover the English executive and legislative branches are so co-related that they can't work at cross-purposes with one another for very long.

If parliament becomes dissatisfied with an administration's policies it readily can nullify them by a vote, which is true as between congress and the president, too. But the president can't do anything about it in short order. The English premier can. He can resign and force an immediate popular showdown. Either he wins flatfootedly or he stays out of office and the other side comes in 100 per cent.

And the premier not only must be expected to plug for his brand of parliamentary candidates in every constituency in the land, just as the leader of the opposition party is expected to plug for his.

DIFFERENT.

The English system has its points. It's efficient, decisive and it works fast. It's democratic also.

But it's difficult to adapt it to our methods or traditions.

They don't mix. England is ONE COUNTRY. A party leader who lives in southern Cornwall can, with perfect propriety, campaign in northern Northumberland. It would be a bit different for a citizen of Florida to boost for a senatorial or representative candidate in Oregon. It would be o. k. if we were England.

WILSON TRIED IDEA.

When an English premier decides that the moment has arrived for a test, he announces that he's "going to the country," meaning that he is going to fight in every constituency in it—personally, if he can make the rounds.

We have had some statesmen who have admired the English system. Woodrow Wilson did. He used that exact English term ("going to the country") just after the World war. He appealed to the whole U. S. for a congress in sympathy with him. He wasn't quite as personal about it as "F. D." has been—though he did get pretty personal as to James A. Reed, then senator from Missouri. He "went to the country" anyway—and lost. He didn't get his kind of a congress. In England that would have ended his administration forthwith. But not here. He served out his term.

WOULD IT WORK HERE?

President Roosevelt doesn't employ the expression "going to the country."

That's what it amounts to nevertheless.

There isn't anything the matter with it in principle or in theory.

But does it fit our system here?

Listen, World!

What Do You Mean . . . "Freedom"!

—By ELSIE ROBINSON

THIS time it's about Freedom. American Freedom. YOUR Freedom—

"But what," you wonder, "is there to debate about in that? Of course we're free. Aren't we the greatest Democracy in the World? Haven't we the Tops Constitution? Doesn't that Constitution say we're all free and equal? Doesn't the Statue of Liberty stand at our front door? Haven't we hundreds of laws to enforce and protect that Liberty?"

All of which is true. But do these various facts imply that YOU, YOURSELF, are free? They do not! To the contrary—you may be as enslaved as any nose-ringed jungle savage. For why? Listen as Young America, in the person of Miss Doris Edna Joines of Matthews, N. C., takes the mike—

Dear Miss Robinson—

All this howling of ours about Freedom makes me a little sick. We take it for granted that, because we're Americans, we're at liberty. But we're not!

FREEDOM IS RELATIVE. EACH ONE OF US IS LIMITED IN HIS FREEDOM, WHETHER HE LIKES IT OR NOT. HE MAY NOT BE LIMITED BY LAW OR BIRTHPLACE OR GOVERNMENT. BUT HE IS LIMITED BY HIS OWN ATTITUDE . . . HIS OWN FEELINGS OR THOUGHTS . . . HIS OWN PREJUDICE, INTOLERANCE, STUPIDITY OR SPINELESSNESS.

We boast that we are free. But, actually, most of us don't even know what Freedom is and we wouldn't like it if we had it. We think that Freedom means going out and raising ructions . . . chucking all our self-control . . . doing whatever we want, regardless of whether it's right or wrong. That's what we think Freedom is and that's what we want.

BUT THAT ISN'T FREEDOM! THAT'S CHAOS! AND CHAOS NEVER BOUGHT ANYONE ANYTHING BUT GRIEF.

ACTUALLY WE ARE ONLY

Church Group Will Have Picnic Next Week, Give Pledge

Considerable business was dispatched during the meeting of the Christian Homebuilders class of the South Main Street Evangelical church last night following the Scripture reading, prayer and song presented by Lawrence Robinson.

Plans were made for a picnic to be held Aug. 31 for which Mr. and Mrs. Rollin Swallen, Mr. and Mrs. Burke Schmittke and Mr. and Mrs. Henry Duffy were appointed as a committee. It was decided to present blankets to mothers of infants. Mrs. Swallen and Mrs. Schmittke are in charge of this committee.

A pledge was made for the church budget and a song and a prayer by the pastor, Rev. C. L. Kern, closed the meeting. A social hour followed with the members participating in a Bible quiz. It was announced that the membership has now reached 33, and the goal is 40 members by the first anniversary of the class.

Mr. and Mrs. Harold Pugh and Mr. and Mrs. Fred Schmittke were in charge of the meeting which was held at the church.

The next meeting will be Sept. 27 with Mr. and Mrs. John Dovenbarger and Mr. and Mrs. Glenn Falk in charge.

LINNAEUS CLUB HAS EXHIBIT, GUEST DAY

Organization Entertains at Home of Mrs. F. M. Glasgow With Dessert-Luncheon, Program by Bellville Visitor.

SPONSORING the first flower show since their organization, members of the Linnaeus Garden club entertained 10 guests at the home of Mrs. F. M. Glasgow, 525 Forest avenue, yesterday, for a 1 o'clock dessert-luncheon and program. The luncheon was served at small tables decorated with garden flowers.

Members and guests entered a number of floral arrangements in the show, and prizes were awarded. Mrs. Leo Perl, a guest, won the tall bouquet award. Mrs. E. S. Taylor was winner in the low bouquet class, and Mrs. Marion Brinkerhoff won both the prize for a miniature bouquet and one for an unusual bouquet.

During the program Mrs. Charles Lee of Bellville was presented as guest speaker. She told about the Ohio association of garden clubs, and spoke of the convention which will be held at Zanesville Oct. 13 and 14.

"Best Flowers for Cutting" was the title of the paper presented by Mrs. C. K. Smaltz, who explained the value of the cutting garden in which flowers for bouquets are raised. After the talks the entries in the show were displayed and judged.

The next meeting of the organization will be held Sept. 13 with Mrs. Brinkerhoff, 43 Penn avenue.

These Not Only Look Good . . . They Are Good!

They're good 'cause they're baked by experienced bakers, 'cause only the best ingredients were used. You'll like them 'cause they're delicious, tasty, inexpensive.

Stop in on your way home and get a supply of DELICIOUS FRESH BAKERY GOODS. A pie or cake for dinner, rolls or cookies for breakfast and lunch—and the kids like MARTIN'S BREAD, with butter and jam during the day. If you cannot come in—your grocer will supply you.
